EVIL DAYS.

The time is nearly approaching when we fear that it will prove equally idle and suicidal to attempt concealment of the evil days which have fallen upon our district, but it can do no good to enlarge upon this topic until much more exact information, to be gathered from the outturn of the threshing mills and other sources, shall have put us in a position to do so with more authority and to greater advantage. What we desire to make plain at the present stage of events, is the folly of refusing to acknowledge the true state of things, even in the event of their turning out as badly as many seem to expect. Owing to the amount of competition and rivalry in the matter of securing immigration, which naturally exists between the widely separated points in the Territories where the nuclei of what must sooner or later become the most important settlements have already formed, there has arisen a sort of spurious sentiment, which stigmatizes as dishonorable or treacherous the utterance of truth with regard to any particular locality if at all unfavorable to it, by any of its residents. There does no doubt under certain circumstances exist an appreciable difference in the immorality attaching to a suppression of the truth and to a deliberate assertion of a falsehood, but after all that difference is one of degree rather than of kind. It has always been, as we have often stated, our sincere desire to avoid the conveyance by carrying to the verge of falsehood exaggeration with regard to the capabilities of our own neighborhood to intending settlers of rose colored prospects doomed to disappointment, and we admit that the merits of this moderation is much lessened by the fact of our conviction that the statement of the naked truth with regard to our vicinity would offer sufficient allurement to any man in the least degree likely to prove a profitable addition to our community. Should the result of this year's harvest, unhappily render it necessary to give to the world a tale of grave misfortune here, we are glad to feel that we will be spared the unpleasant dish served up to those who have to eat their own words, nor shall we having hitherto avoided the sin of false assertion, fall into that of suppression of the truth. To put aside the question of morality, and apply the standard of expediency, it still seems to us that the adage "honesty is the best policy" meets the case of our present circumstances. It must seem only natural to reasonable minds to expect occasional reverses even in places where the general conditions are like our own exceptionally favorable, and the conditional denial or suppression of such when they naturally occur, can only serve to excite suspicion. Should we have at last to chronicle a year of failure, that fact instead of detracting from the desirability of our district as a place for settlement by farmers, can only be most favorably contrasted with the sufferings and misfortunes, known to the whole world, which have happened repeatedly within the time that we have been exempt, in almost every other part of the continent to say nothing of the old country. Our distance at present from railway communication, and the consequent cost of conveying flour and grain for seed to this place if necessary, will make the failure of our crops most severely felt, and appear to have a significance which really in no way bears upon the capabilities of our country. Just as we attempted to explain in our last issue that business failures can only be accepted as reflecting upon the general prosperity of a community after an exhaustive examination of all attendant circumstances, so must the relation of the condition of farmers at any given time to the natural capabilities and resources of any district, be used for drawing inference. If it can be clearly demonstrated that our natural advantages are so great; that only the mistakes of the farmers themselves have left them without comfortable provision against the inevitable rainy day, then it becomes due to the country to expose these errors. We trust in view of this that should we have to undertake this unpleasant task we will not be judged as acting in the spirit of Job's comforters, or trying to air the wisdom which always comes so easily after the event.

COMMUNICATIONS.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for the views expressed by our correspondents.

EXPLANATION.

To the Editor of The Times

Sir,—I beg you will kindly insert these few lines as I should be very sorry to have the story go about among the public that a stolen cow was found in my possession and the arm of the law had to be called in to make me give it up. The truth of the matter is that I bought a cow about four months ago from Mr. Carter, and paid him his own price ($45 in cash), which I considered was full value for an animal of the size. I hold the receipt. The cow I kept openly through the summer, and every passer along the road could see it being milked, and I must say the present claimant must have repeatedly seen it at my residence, although for some reason she never made any remark about it. Last week a sort of half-witted man, who said he was the servant of M. A. Kennedy came in and said the cow was her property. As he could not find the brand on the cow, that he said was on the one ear, and could not produce any authority from Mrs. Kennedy to show that he was acting on her orders, I refused to let him take the beast, as I thought that if I gave it up to the first person who came along, and said it belonged to some one, I could not ask Mr. Carter to refund my money. However I explained carefully to the man that I would give it up at once and he glad to get it off my hands. If Mrs. Kennedy would look at it herself, and claim it, I was advised by the neighbors, much to my regret that I was justified in keeping it until it was identified by the owner or some one producing her authority. Next day I was served with a writ, and the cow taken by the deputy sheriff. This, for all I know, may be law but it is not justice, nor decent treatment of a civilized person by another.

JAMES WHITE.

[We quite sympathize with Mr. White's annoyance at having an animal taken in such a way. If the owner having seen it, left him in the natural belief that having paid a fair price to a man of Mr. Carter's standing, the beast was his own property. Mr. White's offer to give it up if identified by the claimant in person seems a perfectly fair one. If the affidavits were in order we presume the transaction was technically defensible, but we do not believe that the costs of a seizure made under such circumstances would be allowed by the Stipendiary.—Ed.]

MOOSE JAW

From our own correspondent.]

The extensive feed stable owned by Mr. Walsh, which was burned down a few months ago, has now been rebuilt, and is ready for the natural belief that having paid a fair price to a man of Mr. Carter's standing, the beast was his own property. Mr. White's offer to give it up if identified by the claimant in person seems a perfectly fair one. If the affidavits were in order we presume the transaction was technically defensible, but we do not believe that the costs of a seizure made under such circumstances would be allowed by the Stipendiary.—Ed.]

1,700 cattle from Montana en route to Chicago were rested at the stockyards here on the 2nd inst. Further heavy consignments are expected before the winter sets in.

On the 4th inst. forty men of the N. W. M. P., with field artillery, passed here for Battleford via Swift Current, under command of Col. Irvine.

On the 6th inst. Corp. O'Brien, N. W. M. P., passed here in charge of an Indian band, en route for Regina.

The traffic for the west by the C.P.R. is very heavy at present. Several freight trains with supplies and material for the construction passing daily, while the regular passenger service, although the carriers have almost cut their visitations for the season, is as brisk, large numbers of laborers crowding on the freight.

The yield of wheat at the C. P. R. experimental farm at Full Lake averaged twenty seven bushels an acre.

A post office has been opened at Cameron, Rocky Mountains.

MEDICINE HAT.

From our own correspondent.]

The ferry which was washed away by a sudden rise of the river has been towed to stream and placed in the old position. Very slight damage was done to it.

The members of the Methodist Church held a concert in the church the other evening to raise the debt on the building. This they happily achieved. The palm was carried off by Mrs. Burrows and Mr. G. McQuigg, who sang in a duet which later on brought down the house, the old Scottish song, "When ye go away faerie."

Great disappointment has been occasioned here by the news that Galt road will not be commenced this fall.

SHEEP.

About the middle of last July the first flock of sheep destined for this district left a far country, Montana, and reached here, having travelled by Benton a distance of about 1,000 miles, on foot, in such excellent order that many were fit to kill. Although the flock crossed five rivers, three of which they swam, the total loss as far as Maple Creek was six head. The only other loss was of three lambs which perished in a heavy storm of four days duration, encountered on the open prairie about the 8th ult., during which the land got badly saturated. Between Benton and Maple Creek the intense heat of August, and the quantities of rain, reduced the average daily distance travelled to about six miles, while the prevalence of cactus or prickly pear between the neighborhood of Cypress Hills and the last mentioned point at one time resulted in the lameness of half the flock, which were only got along by being shod with tar and canvas, the combined effects of which hardship necessitated a week's rest. It was at Maple Creek that Mr. Fraser took the flock in charge, and to his credit be it told, that although he drove the distance of 400 miles from there to here in twenty-one travelling days, the only loss which occurred—under his care, was that of three lambs in the storm already mentioned. The flock may be roughly numbered at 150, including ten handsome pure bred wethers, the ewes being a cross between that breed and the Cotswold. The Merino breed reached Montana from Vermont, having been originally imported there from France, and the thick close wool of the cross seems to adapt them to the requirements of this country. Mr. MacArthur deserves all credit for his enterprise in bringing within the reach of the humblest farmers, such stock, especially when the absolute necessity for mixed farming has been proved, and he sincerely trusts that while benefitting them, he will find his investment profitable to himself. Before long the growth of wool may be expected to furnish means for fresh industries here. The intention of Mr. MacArthur and Mr. Swanson, who we believe becomes a partner in the enterprise, is at present to retain possession of the original flock, and to stock the country with their young. The possible lingering effects of the long and arduous journey are guarded against by a provision of stock for shelter and of hay, during the worst winter months. We hear with surprise and regret that at Maple Creek a duty of twenty per cent. on value was exacted, and join Mr. MacArthur in the hope that upon representation this will be refunded. We certainly think that the presentation to him by the Government of a bonus, would be far more worthy treatment of his public spirited enterprise.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH.

On Tuesday evening last the members and adherents of St. Paul's Church of this place had the opportunity of witnessing a most solemn and interesting ceremony, the induction of the Rev. Mr. McWilliam, M.A., LL.D., as pastor of the parish. This is the first induction of the first Presbyterian minister in the North West Territories, and we have very great pleasure in congratulating the congregation on being blessed with so estimable a man as their spiritual adviser. The attendance was large. The services were conducted in a very able manner by the Rev. Messrs. Sinclair and McKay. The Presbytery met in the old mission church, erected some seventeen years ago under the auspices of that good man (now deceased) the Rev. Mr. Nesbitt, and awaited complaints if any should be presented. There being none the Rev. Mr. Sinclair then proceeded to the formal induction. Instead of the old mission church this flourishing congregation now worship in a neat brick edifice and have a man for their minister that would do credit to older and more wealthy parishes in the east. The Rev. gentleman has been here for the past year, but his wife and interesting family only arrived lately. We bespeak for them very many pleasant years in Prince Albert, and can but again congratulate the church in having as their pastor one who is so worthy of being a disciple of our Lord. Miss McWilliam presided at the organ, and Mrs. Sprout was, as usual, at the head of the choir, very helpfully and ably assisted by Mr. J. L. Johnson and others. The large congregation was retiring all week last, and welcomed their pastor to his charge which he had accepted, wishing him God speed.

Arrived this week for Walters & Baker a complete assortment of Dry Goods, Clothing, Groceries and Provisions.

INCORPORATION

Several copies of the N. W. Municipal Ordinance of 1884, reached this place to the mail, so for the convenience of those who may not have access to a copy and yet be anxious to know the bearings of its provisions upon the steps necessary to secure our own incorporation we shall follow the following information:

The area sought to be incorporated must not be less than 320 or more than 2,560 acres, some portion of which is subdivided into lots, and by "lot" is meant the subdivisions into which a piece of parcel of land has been divided for purposes of sale into smaller parcels, and shall include the buildings and other improvements thereon. (The significance of the insertion of the words "some portion" will be obvious to all who remember the fate of our last petition.)

The petition for incorporation must state the name of the proposed town, the sections and lots, the townships or parts thereof, or range in a special survey or parts thereof, with a diagram showing the boundaries of the proposed municipality, stating what portions thereof are surveyed into lots.

Every application for incorporation as a town must be accompanied by the sum of $100, and all petitions, statements or other documents furnished in support of application for incorporation must be certified and sworn to before a J. P. or Notary Public of the N. W. T. The petition must be addressed to the Lieutenant-Governor and signed by not less than two-thirds of the residents of area sought to be incorporated.

A resident may be inferred to be a male British subject over twenty-one years of age, having been a freeholder or householder for a period of three months next preceding the date of petition; at any rate, however, the case may stand with regard to those signing a petition in the event of a dispute having to be settled by a general election, only those so qualified for three months next preceding the date of such election will be entitled to vote.

Ample provision is made to settle the question of being incorporated by a vote of all the residents taken at an election, in case of any proceedings being taken against the erection of the municipality by not less than one-third of the residents, but failing such proceedings within four weeks after receipt of the petition by the Lieutenant-Governor, during which he shall publish his intention of erecting the proposed locality into a town, he shall proceed to order the election of a mayor and four councillors.
